FULL BIO

For the past 25 years, David Mann has been a professional performance specialist. He has combined his decades of experience as an actor, director and playwright with the needs of professional leaders, sales teams, and lawyers to deliver a unique angle on presentation skills.

David has performed and directed plays by Shakespeare, Tennessee Williams, David Mamet, Sam Shepard, and many other classic works for the majority of his career. He has written several plays that have been produced nationwide. He works as a professional theater artist currently in the thriving Minneapolis/St. Paul theater scene at theaters such as the Guthrie Theater, Park Square Theatre, Great River Shakespeare Festival, Children's Theatre Company, Torch Theater, Chanhassen Theaters, and many more. His plays have been local favorites, and in 2006 he was awarded the prestigious Bush Fellowship for Performance Art & Storytelling.

For over a decade, David has brought his unique vantage point to business professionals and lawyers. He has developed customized training seminars for several Fortune 500 companies, and his trial advocacy training strategies have earned him a national reputation for excellence in the legal community. In addition to helping attorneys win cases with solid storytelling and delivery, David is on the adjunct faculty of Loyola School of Law and the National Institute for Trial Advocacy.

As a teacher, performer, and speaker, David has been featured in The New Yorker, Village Voice, The Business Journal, and Minnesota Business. He lives in Minneapolis, Minnesota with his wife and two sons.
